Case Study: The Interior Design Show

Outline

Interior designers Brinton Wade approached CGA Integration to showcase lighting technology for the interior design show 2005. The show installation featured versatile LED wash technology combined with simple, innovative wall patterns. CGA Integration also provided lighting control for the show centrepiece champagne bar.

Challenges

With a limited setup window, the demonstration needed to combine efficiency with clear impact and versatility. Installation also needed to be tightly co-ordinated with other trades in a confined space to a very tight schedule.

Technical

Six Thomas LED battens controlled via a QCommander DMX lighting desk provided an eye-catching display of sequenced wall washing. With a power consumption of around 2A per batten, LED systems provide excellent potential for dramatic effects combined with efficiency, low lamp replacement costs and low heat emission.

Response

Tabitha Wade of Brinton Wade commented: 'This feature installation of the show was very important. CGA Integration gave us excellent advice for the project, were very easy to work with and gave us exactly what we needed'.
